PROPOSES MILITARY TRAINING FOR WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker.

Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, of Washington, daughter of the late General John A. Logan, of Civil war fame, and a member of the national committee of the Navy league, urges army training to instruct women for duties in time of war as an additional measure for national preparedness. Mrs. Tucker's suggestion is for camps for women on the order of that at Plattsburg. At these camps they would be instructed in first aid, signalling, telegraphy and the use of small arms.

WASHINGTON NOTES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—According to the report of the postal authorities who investigated and reported on the Carnegie Engineering Corporation, of New York and Pittsburgh, against which concern a fraud order has just been issued, a number of West Virginians fell victims to this alleged fake.

The corporation is alleged by the authorities to have advertised an automobile that would have all the improvements of the highest priced car and which would sell in competition with the Ford; that it had almost as large a plant as there was in the world; and a number of other claims equally as modest. On the strength of these representations, and the use of the name "Carnegie" and Pittsburgh as a manufacturing center, many prospective agents were lured to advance money, ranging in amounts from $50 to $1500. The government authorities say that the concern hasn't a thing advertised and is a "fake." Hence, the prompt issuance of a fraud order.

Mrs. R. C. Price, of Moorefield, is visiting her daughter, Miss Lola Price, who is connected with the good roads department of the department of agriculture. Mrs. Price is the widow of the late State Senator Price, who represented the Harry county district one term and was prominent in Democratic party politics.

The striking resemblance between President Wilson and Solicitor General John W. Davis has frequently been noted in print. Few days pass by that some tourists don't mistake General Davis for the president. The other day they were together in the president's box at the American league ball park, and the similarity in their appearance was observed by hundreds. They looked like twin brothers. The camera men took a picture of them and when it was printed in the papers next day the resemblance was as decidedly marked by the kodak. During the punishments of less majesty, any West Virginian will tell you and prove it to you that General Davis is by long odds the handsomer man. But, then, he isn't president!

"There will be no new dances to be learned by the devotees of that art this coming season," said Prof. Finley Nott, who with his charming wife stopped over in Washington on their way home to Parkersburg. They have been scouting for weeks in the trotteries of New York and at the big seashore resorts for new ideas and the latest terephorean novelities.

Prof. Nott is the dancing master de luxe to society from Charleston to Wheeling, and during one recent season had classes as far south as Bluefield. Last season, which he said was his best, his territory extended from Parkersburg to Wheeling, and he spent a day each week at Clarksburg, Morgantown, Elkins and Fairmont besides. The professor was surely kept on the jump.

"The only new dance out is the canter waltz," said Prof. Nott. "The other new things are merely novel phases of the old. All the dances of last year will be popular the coming season. There may be something new and distinct originated at any time, which will strike the popular fancy, one can never tell, you know. But the coming season will open with the dances of last year holding high place in popular favor."

"I do not see any signs to indicate that dancing will grow less popular."

TIED NO MORE.

Mrs. S. Coates, an old lady of 70, recently began to "feel tired" all the time—just like many people get, long before they are that old. She took Tru-tone Tablets because she knew they were over 80% glycerophosphates, which every modern doctor recommends as a nerve and strength-builder. You, too, can increase your vitality in this natural, harmless way. Get a box at your druggist's. If you don't feel better immediately, you get your money back.

HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and doctored lots for it, but without success. I suffered so very much that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work."

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

Dancing is not a "craze," as you just termed it. It is an art. It is as old as human creation and has progressed through the ages, and will always continue to go forward. It is the medium of expression that humanity cannot find any other channel for, and it is the most beautiful medium there is or ever can be."

For over fifty years, West Virginians have been taught by the Nott family how to dance. The elder Prof. Finley Nott, who journeyed forth across the mountains from Washington to teach the mothers and grandmothers of the present generation of West Virginians, the stately—yes, rather stiff—dances of their period, was lived to a ripe old age and he taught his classes close up to the time when he bowed his stately and hoary head glided gracefully through and beyond life's curtain. Hundreds of West Virginians there are who will recall with tenderness the picture of this old fashioned dancing master of the girl and the boy whom they know today as mother and father.

The mantle of the old master is worn with becoming character by the son.

The first meeting of the season of the West Virginia Society was held in Masonic hall on Friday night. It was strictly a business meeting, at which a committee was appointed to make a revision of the constitution and by-laws of the organization. This committee consists of Charles M. Shinn, Henry S. Baker and R. E. Lowe, and was instructed to report at a meeting which will be held on October 8. Thirteen new members were elected, as follows:

William T. George, Dr. J. W. Mankin, Mrs. Virginia T. Mankin, Mrs. Francis T. Larkin, Mrs. Amanda C. Thignton, Mr. and Mrs. J. Byron Nickerson, Mrs. E. Sloan, T. Thornton, Mrs. Katherine M. Lyons, Miss Val Sloane, Frank C. Green and Samuel G. Mondel.

Hon. and Mrs. Isaac T. Mann are at the Shoreham. They came to inspect the progress that the contractor and decorators are making on their handsome home on Sixteenth street, which has been undergoing repairs this summer. The Mann family spent the first part of the summer season at their home in Mercer county, and after that were stopping

In Case of Fire, Have You a Fire Escape in Your Home?

Every few days we read of people being burned up, in private homes of this state and elsewhere.

Children and mothers who are burned for need of ways of escape. When a fire starts in your home it shuts off your stairways and halls. I have a galvanized metal folding ladder—folds up so it is burglar proof, can be used on your porches or sleeping rooms, will last a life-time. Any member of your family can get out of a burning building in less than one minute—costs only 29c a pound.

I will not make a house to house canvass for I have not the time, but you call me up at Pike News Co., and I will see you at your home or office. If you care for reference I will furnish J. H. Nightingale, State Commissioner of Labor, of Charleston, your Mayor, Chief of Police, or Chief of Fire Department.

Will be in your city September 14-18.

Yours for life saving,

FOLDED.
